

RENT BY SOBS, THAW'S GIRLISH WIFE TELLS JURY HOW STANFORD WHITE WRECKED HER GIRLHOOD

$32,000,000 PRESENTED BY JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER TO CAUSE OF EDUCATION

General Education Board Will Have Control of the Immense Sum.

TOTAL OF $43,000,000
GIVEN BY ROCKEFELLER

Gift Announced Thursday Largest Ever Made by Any Man in History of Mankind for a Social or Philanthropic Purpose.

New York, February 7.—Thirty-two millions of dollars worth of income-bearing securities was the gift which John D. Rockefeller, through his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., announced to the general education board when it assembled for a special meeting in this city late this afternoon.

"For general education purposes throughout the country" is given as the purpose of this donation—the largest single prize ever handed out for such purposes.

Mr. Rockefeller previously had given the board $11,000,000 for the same work, his contributions now amounting to $43,000,000.

Mr. Rockefeller's Letter.
The general education board apparently was not prepared for this gift, which was announced simply in this letter:

"New York, February 6, 1907.—General Education Board, New York City, Gentlemen: My father authorizes me to say that on or before April 1, 1907, he will give to the general board income-bearing securities, the present market value of which is about $32,000,000, one-third to be added to the permanent endowment of the board; two-thirds to be applied to such specific objects within the corporate purposes of the board, as either he or I may from time to time direct, any remainder not so designated at the death of the survivor to be added also to the permanent endowment of the board. Very truly,
"JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR."

Members Amazed by Gift.
Most of the members of the board were surprised at the announcement and amazed at the size of the gift. Dr. Puttrick, the secretary, said he did not know the gift was to be made until he received the letter. Other members did not know of the donation until the letter was read.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., remained throughout the session of the board. Asked if he had anything to add to his letter, he replied he did not believe he could add anything of importance to it, as the letter explained itself.

Members of the board, when asked what the "specific purposes" referred to in Mr. Rockefeller's letter meant, said that it was in the line of education.

OPPOSED TO CONTRACT, STEVENS MAKES THREAT TO QUIT PANAMA CANAL

FRANCE TO PUT ALL HER TAXES ON IDLE RICH

New Income Tax Law of a Most Radical Nature is Proposed.

Paris, February 7.—The new income tax measure was introduced in the chamber of deputies this afternoon. It is a combination of the system of direct taxation upon incomes from whatever source, supplemented by a progressive general tax ranging from 3 to 4 per cent upon general total incomes in excess of $1,000 from various sources, divided into three categories as follows:

Real and personal property will be taxed 4 per cent.
Commercial and industrial property 3 to 4 per cent.
Pay for labor salaries 3 per cent.
Foreign stocks are granted access to the French market on the payment of a stamp tax of 2 per cent. on their nominal value and 5 per cent. upon the revenue they yield. The measure makes no distinction between foreign stocks and foreign government securities.

How Revenues Are Assessable.
Revenues from the first category are assessable by the communes. From the second by the fiscal agents, from the third by the declarations of the taxpayers.

The exemptions for laborers are fixed according to the population, from 1,250 in the smaller communes to 2,500 in the towns. French rentes are nominally exempt, that is to say, the coupons are not taxed, but the revenue derived therefrom is taxable in general incomes. Exemption from taxes incomes just over $1,000 is allowed where several members of a family labor in order to earn that amount.

In order to prevent fraudulent returns the government inspectors are permitted to examine the books of banking houses, large and small, and penalties as high as a quarter of the total amount invested may be levied when fraud is discovered.

Reaching Real Sources of Revenue.
In presenting the new measure, Finance Minister Caillaux said that

Administration Brought Face to Face With Unpleasant Situation.

ULTIMATUM IS GIVEN BY THE CHIEF ENGINEER

Stevens Tells the Administration
That if the Contract System Is Adopted He Will Resign at Once.

Washington, February 7.—The administration has been brought face to face with the alternative of rejecting all bids for the construction of the Panama canal by contract or losing the services of Chief Engineer John F. Stevens. This is the reason for the delay of President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and Chairman Shreve, of the canal commission, in acting on the Oliver bid. An effort has been made to get Mr. Stevens to change his mind, but he has continued obdurate and the indications are that the administration will accede to his request and the construction of the canal will be continued by the government.

This information in regard to the position taken by Mr. Stevens comes from a source that cannot be doubted, but it has created some surprise on account of the testimony given by Mr. Stevens before the senate committee on interoceanic canals a year ago. He then said he favored building the canal by contract. He was of the opinion that contractors would be in a better position to deal with the question of laborers. Since then he has gone over the canal plans carefully and now he expresses the belief that the canal can be constructed by the government within a period of ten years.

Stevens Advised by Friends.
His friends have advised him that if a contract is let for construction he will be robbed of the credit of building this great waterway. Frequent changes of cablograms between Washington and the isthmus have resulted in a demand by Mr. Stevens for the acceptance of his resignation if the contract is awarded.

It is asserted by certain senators who have taken an unusual interest in all matters relating to the canal that if one of the bids for the canal construction is accepted it will mean that the administration has determined to discontinue with Mr. Stevens as the director of the canal construction.

Oliver Bid Considered.
Secretary Taft held a conference today with the president regarding the Panama canal contract for the purpose of determining on a course of procedure. The president and secretary have before them the completed bid of W. J. Oliver and his associates. Secretary Taft said he believed an early decision should be reached in justice to the people who have their money tied up as securities.

After the conference between the president and Secretary Taft, Secretary Loeb gave out the following statement:

"The bid of the Oliver-McDonald-Peire combination has been received and examined and meets the formal requirements. Mr. Paul D. Cravath, on behalf of his clients, the McArthur-Gillespie combination, has requested a hearing before final action is taken. In addition to granting this hearing, the secretary of war and the isthmian canal commission will make as thorough examination as possible into the qualifications, experience, business standing and achievements of Mr. Oliver and his associates and into the responsibility of the securities. Secretary Taft and the commission will probably need a fortnight to complete a full examination of the bid and report to the president."

Roosevelt Inclined to Oliver.
Secretary Taft later in the day made known to Mr. Oliver the result of his talk with the president and framed a letter to Judge E. Brien, Mr. Oliver's counsel, informing him just how the matter stood. This letter stated among other things, that the president was very much inclined to give the contract to Mr. Oliver and his associates, but that he would not surrender his right to reject all bids, even after the further hearing has been given to the McArthur-Gillespie combination. Mr. Oliver will leave here tonight for his home in Knoxville, Tenn.

Man and Wife to Be Tried.
Columbus, Ga., February 7.—(Special.) Claude Byrd and wife, who were arrested in Columbus Tuesday night, charged with having committed forgery in the second degree in Alabama, will be given a preliminary trial before Judge Coan in Phenix City tomorrow morning. They were assessed bonds of $500 each, which they made.

SHE LAID BARE HER LIFE IN OPEN COURT.

MRS. EVELYN NESBIT THAW.

THAW SOBBED WITH HIS WIFE AS HER STORY REACHED CLIMAX

NEW YORK, February 7.—It was through the fact that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had "told everything to Harry" that she was permitted under the rules of law to give her story to the jury.

Thaw sat pale but brave, faced by the side of his counsel when his wife took the stand. The two exchanged glances and the faintest of smiles played about the firmly-set lips of the girl. She wore the same blue, long-coated dress she had on each day of the trial. About her neck was a black turned-down collar—such as little boys wear—caught together by a little black tie in front. Her hair, braided and looped well down on her neck, was caught with a big black ribbon bow, the ends of which peeped out in dark relief from behind the cheeks that were pale at first, but mounted crimson when she was told to give all the details of her experience with the man who fell a victim to her husband's pistol.

Mrs. Thaw wore the flat velvet hat, trimmed with one little bunch of violets, which has become familiar as a part of her costume. She was unveiled, however, for the first time, and her youth and beauty were remarked by every one. Masses of black hair waved beneath the velvet brim of her hat and helped to form the girlish face of almost perfect molded features. The brown eyes looked through long black lashes; the brows were symmetrically arched.

In the sympathy-inspiring story of the girl, the girlish fascination of a voice of softest quality, yet ringing clear in enunciation, the court room lost view of the prisoner. But when there came a halt in the girl's fight against the tears, the people who had gazed unceasingly at her, lowered their eyes, as if the relief from their stare might bring her the composure she finally won. Then they saw Harry Thaw again, his whole frame shaking. He sat with his head buried in his hands, a handkerchief covering the eyes. Where the defendant sits he is all but concealed from the jury. He bent over the table as he sobbed, he could not be seen at all. Thus Thaw sat for many minutes and when he finally lifted his head his eyes were red and swollen.

Even if they could have seen, the jurors would have had no eyes for the prisoner. They, too, had turned their gaze from the witness as the tears came to her voice as well as her eyes, and each man of the twelve seemed intent upon some object on the floor beneath them. Justice Fitzgerald looked out through the long grated windows. The scene and the story marked a new precedent in the history of criminal proceedings in New York city. Old court attendants gave their ready assent to this.

A feature of the day was the tribute the girl paid her husband, to save whose life she has braved all.

"When I told him the story in Paris," she said, "He came to me and picked up the hem of my skirt and kissed it, and said he would always love me."

"He nearly always called me his angel. We sat together that night until daylight talking the matter over."

"The effect on Harry was terrible. Stanford White sent me to school in New Jersey in October, 1902, and early in 1903 I became ill. The doctors came and said an operation was necessary. They told me I was very sick, but did not say what was the matter. Mr. Thaw came to see me, and was the last person, except the doctors, whom I saw before being placed under the influence of an anesthetic. He had been told it was dangerous for me to talk. So he came in quietly, and knelt down by the bed and kissed my hands, and looked at me for a moment and went out."

TEARS FELL AS GIRL TOLD SAD STORY

Wave of Emotion Swept Court-

the Climax With Stanford White.

BEFORE WEDDING THAW, SHE TOLD HOW WHITE HAD WRECKED HER LIFE.

Evelyn, in Describing the Climax
With White, Said the Architect Gave Her Drugged Champagne—Her Story Was Fitter for a Sanctuary
Than for a Court Room.

New York, February 7.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw told her story today. To save the life of her husband, charged with murder, she bared to the world the innermost secrets of her soul—a portrayal for which a sanctuary was a more fitting place than the crowded court room.

It was the same story she told Harry Thaw in Paris in 1903, when he asked her to become his wife—the confession of one who felt there was an insurmountable barrier to her ever becoming the bride of the man she loved.

TEARS TRICKLED DOWN HER SCARLET CHEEKS

In the big witness chair, she appeared, but a slip of a girl. And, she told the pitiful story of her eventful young life in a frank, girlish way. When tears came to her big brown eyes and slowly trickled their way down scarlet cheeks, she strove in vain to keep them back. Though the lump in her throat at times seemed about to smother her, she forced the words from trembling lips and by a marvelous display of courage, which took her willingly to her staggering ordeal, she shook off a depression, which once threatened to become an absolute collapse.

As the young wife unfolded the narrative of her girlhood and told the early struggles of herself and her mother to keep the body and soul together, of how gamblers pestered her at the door, and how she finally was able to earn a livelihood by posing for photographers and artists, she won the murmured sympathy of the throng, which filled every available space in the big court room.

WRECK OF HER GIRLHOOD

BY STANFORD WHITE

Then came the relation of the wreck of that girlhood, at 16 years of age. It was the story of her meeting with Stanford White, the story of the sumptuous studio apartment, whose dingy exterior gave no hint of the luxurious furnishings within; of a velvet covered swing in which one could swing until slipped toes crashed through the paper of a Japanese parasol swung from the ceiling; the story of a glass of champagne, of black, whirling sensations, and of mirrored bedroom walls. In short, she told all the story.

"Don't scream so. It is all over. It is all right."

"And this was Stanford White?"

The question came from Delphin M. Delmas, now conducting the defense of Harry Thaw.

"Yes, sir."

STILLNESS OF CROWD

TRIBUTE TO HER STORY

The silence of the crowd, which was big, bustling, shouting and snarling over some especially covered seat when court convened, was its own tribute to the effect of the girl's story. Into the narrative there entered nothing of the woman of the world. A girl, in face figure, Mrs. Thaw, was still a girl as she withstood an ordeal which might well have started into terror a woman of mature years and harsher experiences. Into the narrative she injected many little touches of a young girl's hopes and disappointments.

Of her early life, she related how her mother had gone from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia to secure assistance, and how she and her brother, Howard, the brother who has been in court many days, but not once has gone near his sister—were placed on a train by friends and sent on to their mother.

She recalled that the two little travelers had trouble with the conductor, who wanted to put their cat out of the car. But, she naively added, they held fast possession of it, just the same. She told of her arrival in New York, of her life there, and eventually the acceptance by her mother of the divorce suit given them of a girl of the theater to meet some of her friends at luncheon. The girl's mother told Evelyn's mother they were people in New York society, and perfectly proper, else she would not let her girl go with them.

"When she came for me in the afternoon," said the witness, "I remember hoping we were going to the Waldorf—I had heard so much about it, and wanted to go there. But the hansom stopped in front of a dingy looking building at West Twenty-fourth street, and I was told to get out. Mother had dressed me. My skirts were just to my shoes, tops then."

This was in August, 1901.

SHE DESCRIBES WHITE

AS BIG, FAT AND UGLY

"He was a big and fat and ugly man—I remember him meeting us at the head of three flights of stairs," she continued. "He gave me presents, and my mother let me go to other parties. Then he said my mother should visit some friends in Pittsburgh. She said she would not leave me. Finally she went. Then came an invitation to a party, but no one else was there—just two. They all seem to have turned me down," he said. After we had had dinner, and I wanted to go home, he said I had not seen all of the apartments, and we went to the bed room with the mirrors all over the walls.

"He gave me more champagne. Then everything became whirly and black. When I came to, my clothes were all off. I screamed and screamed, but he kept telling me to stop saying."

"It's over, it's all right."

Telling the story ran, with just here and there an interruption by Mr. Delmas to advise the girl to fix the dates of the various happenings, and always to tell just what she had told Harry K. Thaw, when he asked her to become his wife. It was through the fact that she had "told everything to Harry" that she was permitted under the rules of law to give her story to the jury.

THAW WAS VERY PALE

WHEN WIFE TOOK STAND

Thaw sat pale, but brave-faced beside his counsel, when his wife took the stand. Two exchanged friendly glances and the faintest of smiles played about the firmly-set lips of the girl. She wore the same blue, long-coated dress she had on each day of the trial, about her neck was a fat, turned-down collar, such as little boys wear—caught together by a little black tie in front. Her hair, braided and looped well down on her neck, was caught with a big black ribbon bow, the ends of which peeped off in dark relief from the cheeks that were pale at first, but mounted crimson when she was told to give all the details of her experience with the man who fell a victim to her husband's pistol.

She was unveiled for the first time, and her youth and beauty were remarked by everyone.

In the sympathy-impelling story of the girl, the girlish fascination, a voice of the softest quality, yet ringing clear in enunciation, the court room lost view of the prisoner.

But when there came a halt in the girl's fight against the tears, the people who had gazed unceasing at her, lowered their eyes as if the relief from their stare might bring her the composure she finally won. Then they saw Harry Thaw again.

WIFE'S STORY CAUSED

THAW TO SHAKE WITH SOBS

His whole frame shaking, he sat with his head buried in his hands, a handkerchief covering his eyes. Where the defendant sits he is all but shielded from the jury. Bent over the table as he sobbed, he could not be seen at all. Thus Thaw sat for many minutes, and when he finally lifted his head, his eyes were red and swollen.

Even if they could have seen, the jurors would have had no eyes for the prisoner. They, too, had turned their gaze from the witness as the tears came to her voice, as well as her eyes, and each man of the twelve seemed to have some sympathy for the floor between them.

Justice Fitzgerald looked out through the long grated windows. The scene and the story marked a new period in the history of criminal proceedings in New York city.

Mrs. Thaw was still on the stand, her direct examination uncompleted, when the day was done. Once during the afternoon, she was excused for an hour while Lawyer Frederick Longfellow was sworn to fix the date of certain letters written to him by Harry Thaw subsequent to the revelations Miss Nesbit had made to him in Paris.

EVELYN WALKED UNSTEADILY

The girl had identified the writing, but the court held that date must also be a matter of competent evidence.

Mrs. Thaw seemed to appreciate the relief the incident offered, although during the hour and half recess for luncheon had recovered from the fatigue of the two hours spent in the witness chair during the morning session. As she left the stand for recess she walked unsteadily and passing back of the jury box ran the fingers of her left hand along the walls as a blind person might.

The letters which eventually were offered in evidence, after much objecting by Jerome and a flood of argument by opposing counsel during the afternoon sitting of the court are regarded as corroborative of Mrs. Thaw's testimony to day, which she often declared in reply to objections offered from time to time by the district attorney, was a repetition of the reason she had given them for refusing to become his wife. They also were offered as tending to show the state of mind of the defendant just after he had heard from her own lips the story of the girl he loved and her relations with the man who had killed her as a result of insanity inherited in part and induced by stress of circumstances.

THAW'S LETTERS REFER

TO THAT "BLACKGUARD"

The letters were written by Thaw to Mr. Longfellow as his attorney. They told of his coming marriage with Miss Nesbit, and of the "row they want to raise, disconnected and jerky, jumping from subject to subject, twice over, never breathe the love he bore the girl, and he wanted, among other things, that provision should be made that in the event of his death that all his property should go to her. The letters constantly refer to that "blackguard, who poisoned her as a girl," and say that her name was falsely connected with two others beside "that blackguard." Only two of the half dozen letters were read during the afternoon session. The others probably will be presented when court convenes tomorrow, and Mrs. Thaw is again called to the stand. The completion of the direct examination of the prisoner's wife will possibly require all of tomorrow's session.

There is an impression that Mr. Delmas may strike to have it occupy the entire day, in order that the young woman may take advantage of the adjournment over Saturday and Sunday to recover from her fatigue, and be prepared for the cross-examination of District Attorney Jerome.

"VOTE FOR HARRY THAW,"

MAN CRIED TO THE JURY

While the Thaw jury was on its way to court this morning a man shouted in the street, "Vote for Thaw." He was promptly arrested and taken before Justice Fitzgerald in chambers, and allowed to go after a severe reprimand.

THE NEW BIFOCAL THE OLD STYLE

STORY OF EVELYN NESBIT THAW IN DETAIL; SHE CHARGES THAT WHITE DRUGGED HER

NEW YORK, February 7.—The announcement that either the mother or wife of Harry Thaw would be the principal witness at today's proceedings brought out an unusually large crowd at the criminal court building. The corridors were filled and scores of people, many of them women, tried in every possible way to force themselves by the officers at the court room door, but after yesterday afternoon's lachry the bars were put up again and very few were allowed to pass. However, half a score of women managed to succeed. They were attired in their gayest costumes.

Justice Fitzgerald had just taken his seat on the bench when Mr. Delmas, of Thaw's counsel, requested the clerk to call Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

The familiar figure in blue, now for the first time without her veil, appeared from the judge's chambers. She stood near the jury box as Clerk Penny administered the oath.

"I swear," repeated Mrs. Thaw in an audible voice, at the end of the formal declaration which was made just a little more impressively than usual.

EVELYN THAW TAKES STAND WITHOUT ANY EMOTION

Mrs. Thaw took her place on the witness chair calmly. She looked steadily ahead at Mr. Delmas and gave her answers to his first questions in a clear and firm voice, which was soft in quality.

Harry Thaw smiled at his wife as she walked to the witness stand, but she apparently did not see him at the moment. After she was seated, however, she smiled faintly at the prisoner.

Mrs. Thaw's beauty was generally commented on in the court room. The simplicity of her dress seemed to heighten the effect. Her long dark lashes and heavy eyebrows were noticeable now for the first time to those who have followed the trial. In the excitement of testifying her paleness of the past two weeks fled before a rush of crimson tints in her cheeks. In answer to Mr. Delmas' first question Mrs. Thaw said she was born December 25, 1884. She told of going to the Cafe Martin to dinner the evening of June 25 with her husband, Thomas McCall, and Truxton Beale.

"While you were at the Cafe Martin did you see Stanford White?"

"Yes."

"At what time did you see him?"

"I don't know. It was some time after we arrived."

"Where did you first see him?"

"Coming in at the Fifth avenue entrance."

"How long did you see him?"

"I don't know. He passed through and went on to the balcony."

"While he was on the balcony, could you see him?"

"No."

EVELYN WROTE TO THAW WHEN SHE SAW WHITE

"Did you see him leave?"

"Yes. I saw him come in from the balcony, and go out the Fifth avenue entrance."

"While you were in the Cafe Martin did you call for a pencil?"

"Yes."

"From whom?"

"I think from Mr. McCall, he said he did not have one."

Mrs. Thaw said that Mr. McCall sat on her left, Beale on her right, and Thaw was facing her.

"Did you ask again for a pencil?"

"Yes. I got one from some one. I don't remember whose."

"Did you write a note?"

"On what?"

"A slip of paper. I think Mr. McCall gave it to me."

"What did you do with it?"

"I passed it to Mr. Thaw."

"What did Mr. Thaw do?"

"He said to me: 'Are you all right?'"

"What was your condition as to being disturbed or affected?"

"Mr. Jerome's objection to the question was sustained."

"Was there anything unusual in your manner that was visible to others?"

"Again an objection was sustained."

"After this, how long did you remain?"

"Only a short time."

"Mrs. Thaw, have you that slip of paper now?"

"I have not."

"Have you seen it since?"

NOT ALLOWED TO TELL WHAT SHE WROTE TO THAW

"No."

"Did you write refer to Stanford White?"

"Mr. Jerome objected on the ground that the note itself was the best evidence."

"After you left the restaurant, you went to Madison Square Roof Garden?"

"Yes."

"About what time was it?"

"About the middle of the first act."

Mrs. Thaw said that she sat in the seats with Mr. Beale and Mr. McCall. Her husband went to the back of the theater, she said. He was away about fifteen minutes when he returned and took a seat beside her.

"How long did he remain at your side?"

"About half an hour."

"What was his manner then?"

"It seemed to be the same as ever."

"Did you talk about anything special then?"

"No, just general."

"Who suggested going away from the garden?"

"I did."

"The play was not interesting to you?"

"Not a bit," said the witness.

"How did you start when you went out?"

"I think Mr. McCall and I were in the lead and Mr. Thaw and Mr. Beale followed."

EVELYN TELLS HOW THAW KILLED STANFORD WHITE

"How far had you gone when something happened?"

"Almost to the elevator. I had turned around to speak to Mr. Thaw."

"How far was he from Mr. White then?"

"About as far as the end of the jury box."

"You saw Mr. White sitting there?"

"I did."

"Did you see Mr. Thaw then?"

"Not until a minute or so afterwards. He was directly in front of Mr. White, standing with his arm up in the air."

"Did you hear shots fired?"

"Yes. Immediately that I saw Mr. White I heard the shots."

"How many shots?"

"Three shots."

"What did you say?"

"I said to Mr. McCall: 'I think he has shot him.'"

"Did Mr. Thaw come over to where you were?"

"Yes. I think with Mr. McCall and Mr. Beale."

"What did he do?"

"He left and did not return."

while Mr. Jerome and Mr. Delmas whispered.

"How were you dressed?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"I wore a short dress with my hair down my back."

The witness said they went up into another room, where a big Japanese umbrella was swinging.

Mr. Jerome objected to the testimony on the ground that she would have no opportunity to prove or disprove the alleged facts.

Mr. Delmas said the defense would offer no objection to the district attorney probing the correctness of the facts.

She said that afterwards they went for a drive to the park, then returned to the house with Mr. White. She said when she got home she told her mother everything that happened.

"Did your mother subsequently receive a letter from Stanford White?"

"She did."

"What was in the letter?"

"It asked my mother to call on Mr. White at No. 160 Fifth avenue."

WHITE PAID DENTIST BILLS FOR EVELYN AND MOTHER

"Did you tell Mr. Thaw about that?"

"I did."

"When your mother returned, did she tell you anything?"

"She did."

"What did your mother tell you?"

"He asked her to take me to a dentist and have my teeth fixed and for her to have her own fixed, too. Mr. White told her that he did that for the other girls."

"When did you next see White?"

"I saw him in the studio. I got a note from him previously inviting me to a party and saying a carriage would be waiting for me on the corner. Before that he had sent me a hat, a feather boa and a cape. There was another man and girl with us."

Mr. Delmas said she was waiting for the other parties to Mr. Jerome.

"Where did you go?"

"To the studio in Madison Square tower. We had a very nice time there. Mr. White said I was only to have one glass of champagne and that I was to be brought home early. I told Mr. Thaw that we had several parties of this kind in the tower."

"Did you see Mr. White again?"

"Yes. He came to see my mother, told her that I would be all right in New York and that he would take care of me."

Mrs. Thaw said she met White in September, 1901, in a studio in East Twenty-second street. The door opened of itself, she said, and the house looked at first as if no one lived there. She went up stairs and met Mr. White, a photographer and another man.

The witness whispered the name of the man to Mr. Jerome, who wrote it down.

"What did you see there?"

"There was a lot of expensive gowns there."

WHITE WANTED TO AID GIRL IN PUTTING ON DRESS

"I went into the dressing room to put on the dress. Mr. White knocked at the door and asked if I needed any help."

She then related her experience in the photographic studio and said she had posed until she was very tired and that White, who had come in ordered food and they had something to eat. The photographer had left she said and after they had lunched she went into a dressing room to remove her kimono and put on her dress.

"I shut the door while I was inside. Mr. White came to the door, knocked and asked me if I wanted any help. I said 'No.'"

She testified that she drank but one glass of champagne and when she was dressed she got into a carriage and was taken back to the hotel.

"The next morning Mr. White asked me to come to the studio for a luncheon after the theater with some of his friends. A carriage would call for me and I would take my coat. After the party, he wrote, I went down the Twenty-fourth street studio again and found Mr. White and no one else there."

"What did you think?" he said to me. The others have turned up down."

"Then I told him I had better go home, and he told me that I had better sit down and have some fruit. So I took out my handkerchief and Mr. White told me he had other floors in the garden and that I had not seen all of his place. He would take me around and show me, he said."

WHEN THE GIRL AWOKE HER CLOTHES WERE GONE

"So he took me up some stairs to the floor above, where there were very beautiful decorations and a piano. I played for him and took me into another room. That room was a bedroom. On a small table stood a bottle of champagne and one glass."

"Mr. White poured out just one glass for me and I paid no attention to it. Mr. White went away, came back and said: 'I decorated this room myself. Then he asked me why I was not drinking my champagne and I said I did not like it. He tasted bitter. But he persuaded me to drink it and I did.'

"A few moments after I had drunk it there began a pounding and thumping in my ears and the room got all black."

Mrs. Thaw was almost in tears at this statement.

"When I awoke my clothes had all been taken off me. I started to cry. Mr. White got up and threw a kimono on me. As I sat up I saw mirrors all around me. I began to scream again and Mr. White asked me to keep quiet, saying that I was all over. 'When he threw the kimono over me he left the room. I screamed harder than ever. I don't remember how I got my clothes on.'

"I took me home and I sat up all night crying."

WHITE MADE HER SWEAR SHE WOULD NEVER TELL

"Where was Mr. White when you recovered consciousness?"

"Yes. I told him that if I did marry him, the friends of Stanford White would laugh at him and laugh at me, as they suspected our relationship if they did not know."

WOMEN IN COURT CRIED AS SHE TOLD OF HER RUIN

Witness told Thaw that it would not be well to marry on account of his family. He persisted that he wished to marry her. Mrs. Thaw recovered her composure after she had got over the most sensational part of her story. Many of the women in court wept as she told of the most intense and prevailed in the room. Mrs. Thaw said she had also told Thaw of her early life with her mother, and of her financial difficulties. The tragedy she carried as an artist's model she gave to her mother. That was their only means of support. Evelyn, after she and her mother came to New York with letters of introduction, experienced some hard times.

Finally she said: "I met Mr. Carroll Beckwith, the artist, in December, 1900, and he engaged me to pose for him, some times twice a week. He gave me letters of introduction to other well known artists, and I posed for them."

Then, the witness continued, she applied for a position on the stage, expecting to continue as a model, while earning money as a dancer. The first manager to whom she applied said, according to Mrs. Thaw: "That it was not a baby farm," and she did not want to take me. I danced for the manager, and he offered me a place, directing me not to tell how old I was."

"You went to Paris; when did you return?"

"I returned in the end of October, 1902."

"When did you first meet Harry K. Thaw?"

"In 1901."

SHE TOLD HARRY THAW WHITE SENT HER TO SCHOOL

"How many times had you seen him between 1901 and 1903?"

"I had only seen him once in the meantime."

Thaw, the witness said, opposed her going on the stage, saying she was too young and offered to send her and her brother to school.

"You were sent to school later, however, when?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"In 1902."

"Did you go during any of this period?"

"Yes. And I had to go to a hospital."

"The offer of Thaw to send you to school was refused?"

"Yes."

"When you saw Mr. Thaw in 1903, did you tell him about going to school?"

"I told him that Mr. White had sent me to school."

The witness then told of her sickness, and the operation to which she was obliged to submit, and of Thaw's kindness to her at that time. She said that in early 1903, after her recovery Thaw arranged the European trip for the witness and her mother. Thaw followed them to Europe. Here reference was made to the fact that Thaw was a witness while she was abroad, and Mr. Delmas sought to introduce it as evidence.

Mr. Jerome objected.

"What is the relevancy of the letter?" asked Justice Fitzgerald.

"Its contents have distinct reference to the statements made by the witness to Mr. Thaw, and is an evidence of the effect on Mr. Thaw of the statements so made," replied Mr. Delmas.

"If it were proper to admit the statement made by the witness, the fact that she was under the influence of a drug would be a consideration of the case."

Mr. Delmas said he did not have his authorities at the moment. It was then 12:25 o'clock, and Mr. Delmas asked for an adjournment until 2 o'clock.

The court adjourned for the reading of the cross-examination, I will not object," said Mr. Jerome.

Recess was then declared.

THAW LOOKS AT HIS WIFE WITH WORLD OF MEANING

Again the court room was crowded to its utmost capacity when the afternoon session opened. The crowd pressed that the two large round tables were surrounded, leaving barely elbow room.

Harry Thaw was unusually pale as he entered the court room. When he reached his seat he took up his coat and paper and began to make notes until his wife was again called to the witness stand. Then he looked up at her. They exchanged glances which seemed to have a world of meaning in them.

Former Judge William K. Olcott, who was the first counsel engaged by Thaw in his defense, appeared at the criminal court building during recess in response to a summons "forthwith" and saw Mr. Garvan. He was told that Thaw had made a statement in regard to her relations with White and with Thaw to Judge Olcott when he trouble first came. Judge Olcott then made a statement in the statement if it were in existence or to be ready to testify to it if he were wanted.

Mr. Delmas was about to renew his argument for the court to grant an attorney named Longfellow just after the Paris incident when Mr. Jerome said he would withdraw his objection. He first asked permission to read the letter. The letter first was offered at the end of the morning session.

During this time Mrs. Thaw gazed frequently at Justice Fitzgerald, who said just before the reading of the letter: "There was an undeniable appeal in her eyes."

LETTER FROM HARRY THAW CALLING WHITE BLACKGUARD

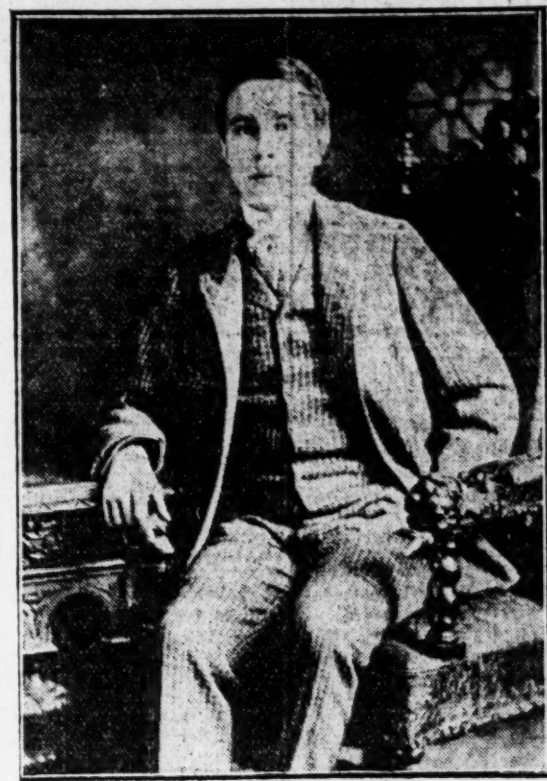

The letter addressed to Attorney Longfellow and which was offered as tending to show Thaw's frame of mind was as follows:

"I insisted calling New York when her daughter left. I kept Mrs. N. in London three months, cost over $1,000. Mrs. Nesbit sails tomorrow for New York. She thinks I kidnapped her 17 3/4-year-old daughter. Before she landed she knew that I had always done the best I could. The child cannot be with her mother because when she was 15-23 years old she was ruined by a blackguard. Don't worry, but find out her address. Telephone Mrs. N., but not in your name. Ask her if she saw Mr. Thaw abroad. As soon as she answers hang up the telephone."

On a slip of paper inclosed was written: "If you cannot read this, don't worry. Please telephone her incoherent, and wire me at my expense."

The letter was signed: "H. K. T."

Following the reading of the letter from Thaw to Attorney Longfellow, Mr. Delmas offered another letter written by Thaw. Mr. Jerome after reading the paper objected to it on the ground that there was nothing to indicate its date. He contended it could be shown that the letter was written before Stanford White was killed.

Mr. Delmas declared that the letter was admissible as tending to show a state of mind regardless of when it was written.

"Suppose it should have been written yesterday," suggested Justice Fitzgerald. "I think it would be admissible," replied Mr. Delmas.

Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection, and Mr. Delmas said he would withdraw the letter for the present.

Much time was consumed in a discussion as to the admissibility of letters written by Thaw. Mr. Jerome objected to several on the ground that dates had not been properly fixed. Mr. Delmas insisted that they tended to show the mental condition of the writer.

EVELYN THAW RESUMES SAD STORY OF HER LIFE

Mrs. Thaw was shown one of the letters and asked:

"Was this letter written before or after June 25, 1906?"

Mr. Jerome objected on the ground that Mrs. Thaw was not qualified to express an opinion.

Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection.

Mr. Delmas then stated that the man to whom the letters were addressed had been sent for, and would be introduced to identify them and fix their dates. For the time being the subject of the letter was dropped.

When returned from Europe in 1903, Mrs. Thaw, asked Mr. Delmas, in continuing his examination, "did you come at the same time as Mr. Thaw, or alone?"

"I came before he did."

"When did you reach New York?"

"About the end of October."

"Before you left Europe did you have a conversation with Harry Thaw about your being in New York?"

"Yes; Mr. Thaw said he would have Mr. Longfellow meet me, and see me through the custom house."

"Did you bring a letter for Mr. Longfellow from Mr. Thaw?"

"Yes."

EVELYN HAD HEARD THAW HAD SCOLDED A GIRL

"When did you see Thaw after his return?"

"I think it was a little over a month."

"Where did you first see him?"

"At the Hotel Navarre, where we were stopping."

"Did you see him alone?"

"No. I would not see him alone."

"He had, and so when he came to see me there was another man present."

Following the privilege granted by the defense, Mrs. Thaw repeated the name of the second man to Mr. Jerome in a whisper, but did not aloud.

"The second man," asked Mr. Delmas, "was a member of the bar—a man of standing in the community—was he not?"

"Yes."

"What happened at this interview?"

"I sat on a trunk. Mr. Thaw came toward me, and I asked the other man not to leave the room. Mr. Thaw said to me: 'What is the matter? Why don't you want to see me any more?'"

"I told him I had heard certain things about him, and did not care to see him any more. He asked me what I had heard, and I said: 'I have been told that you took a girl and put her in a bath tub and poured scalding water on her.' I also told him I heard he took morphine."

THAW KISSED HER HAND AND CALLED HER "ANGEL"

"Did you tell Thaw you told him those stories?"

"Not at first. Later, I told him a friend of Stanford White told me."

"What did Mr. Thaw do?"

"He shook his head and said: 'I told him that Mr. White had sent me to school.'"

F. M. BERRY, Assistant CashierJUDGE OF CIVIL DIVISION OF ATLANTA CITY COURT

FOR the past ten years Judge Harry M. Reid has presided with distinguished ability in the city court, civil division, of Atlanta, and is now entering upon his eleventh year of service in that position.

That his onerous duties have been well performed is attested by the fact that he has been twice reappointed by the chief executive of the state to the ed, he found in chambers, busily engaged with the consideration of matters which pertain to his judicial duties and which may be disposed of without the intervention of a jury.

The most marked characteristic of the man is his punctilious courtesy, tempered with geniality. To the layman, as to his professional brother, he is ever ready, however much engrossed in the duties of his judicial office, to surrender a portion of his time, leaving most of those with whom he comes in contact his debtor.

Withal, Judge Reid has an excellent humor and is a raconteur of no mean parts. At a recent banquet of the bar association, given at the Kimball house, among all the impromptu talks made on that occasion his stands out as one which sparkled with the clean humor born of many years of observation of events as they occur to the judicial eye and mind.

Judge Reid has lived in Atlanta since 1889, to which he removed from Carrollton, Ga. After six years of successful practice of law in Atlanta, he was appointed in January, 1896, to the position of judge of the city court of Atlanta by Governor William Yates Atkinson, and has since been reappointed and is now serving the third term of four years of his reappointment to that office.

He was admitted to the bar in 1873 and after practicing his profession for a year in Gainesville, Ga., moved to Palmetto, where he was elected and served for one year as mayor in 1877. In 1880 he moved to Fairburn, Ga., was elected solicitor general of the Coweta circuit, and reelected in 1885, serving eight years as prosecuting officer for the circuit, the ability with which he administered the duties of his office winning him laurels in his profession, he having earned the reputation of being a terror to evil doers. As solicitor general he prosecuted and retained convictions in a number of capital cases in the face of public sympathy and an array of extraordinary legal talent on the side of the defense.

An earnest democrat, Judge Reid was chosen in the memorable state campaign of 1894 between the democratic and populist parties, to do battle in behalf of the democratic hosts. To his record as a campaigner, his own distinguished honors in the forum he added that of being a power on the hustings, his vigorous campaign speeches causing his services to be sought on every hand in the campaign.

Judge Reid is a Presbyterian by faith, is a master Mason, a member of the Knights of Honor and stands high in several other fraternal organizations.

office to which he was originally appointed, that as a jurist he stands in the front rank of his fellows, the reports of the state court of last resort bear ample evidence, and his genial courtesy, dignified bearing and judicial poise have won for him the encomiums of the members of the bar, their esteem and affection.

Above all else, Judge Reid is a tireless worker. Except for a brief vacation during the dog days, his court may be said to be always in session. At 9 o'clock in the morning his court is opened to those who have "causes" to plead and draw near to be heard, and at adjournment in the afternoon Judge Reid may daily, Sunday except-

JOHN CHARLTON TO MANAGE
UNCLE REMUS' CIRCULATION

JOHN A. CHARLTON, one of the best known men in publishing circles in America, will be circulation manager of Uncle Remus' Magazine, according to announcement made

JOHN A. CHARLTON,
Who Will be Circulation Manager for Uncle Remus' Magazine.

yesterday by Julian Harris, business manager of the new venture. Mr. Charlton is leaving Everybody's Magazine, of New York, to take up his new duties.

Although a young man, Mr. Charlton has been a "circulator" for more than twelve years. He was sent down to Atlanta from New York as a special representative of The Herald during the Cotton States and International exposition in 1895. At that time he made many friends in this city, and achieved quite a reputation by reason of his efficient service for the Bennett paper.

Subsequently he became traveling representative through the south and east for The New York Sun. Leaving that paper, he was for four years traveling representative of The Boston Herald, doing most of his work in the New England states.

When Erman J. Ridgway conceived the idea of his string of weeklies to be published simultaneously in fourteen cities, Mr. Charlton was one of the first men he secured. On account of his knowledge of the south, he was put in charge of the Atlanta office, which made a splendid showing. When the paper was withdrawn from this city, Mr. Charlton was transferred to the circulation department of Everybody's Magazine. He is known among the news dealers from Portland, Me., to Portland, Oregon, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. He is particularly familiar with the south.

Aggressive in his methods, yet always marked by poise and assurance of manner, and thoroughly informed as to his business, it is believed Uncle Remus' Magazine has made a ten-fold increase in its circulation.

MRS. BROOKS FOUND GUILTY.

Hall County Woman Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

Gainesville, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—This morning the jury brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of Mrs. Sue Brooks, who was charged with being an accessory to the murder of Jack Collins last November. A sentence of life imprisonment was given her. This is the same sentence which was given her son, Foster Brooks, two weeks ago.

The jury spent considerable time on the case. They retired at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The verdict of guilty was reached after an all-night session.

It is charged that the woman and her son beat to death with sticks Jack Collins, who was said to be looking for the place where, it is claimed, his son had been buying blind tiger liquor, and in searching for which he went to the Brooks home.

A SENSATIONAL PETITION

Has Been Filed in the Tarbutton-Flucker Case at Dublin.

Dublin, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—The most sensational petition in the history of Laurens county in recent years was presented this morning to the court by the prosecution in the Tarbutton-Flucker case. The court was asked to dissolve the bonds of the accused men, remand them to jail and to appoint a board of five physicians to inquire into their alleged physical condition.

It was stated in the petition that it was the belief of the prosecution that the absent witness, Lee Woodum, was and is in the hands of friends of the defendants, and that he would have been produced if a trial had been ordered. The petition was expressed in the petition that if the men are not remanded to jail that they will seek from time to time to have their case continued. Judge Lewis promptly ordered that the petition be denied.

Pelham Mill Affected by Law.

Pelham, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—Under the recent child labor law there are many children out of the mill here. The operatives have asked for a school in the mill village. Trustees have been appointed and a teacher selected. This gives over 400 white children in the public schools of this city.

SNOW, SLEET AND RAIN
RULED THE GATE CITY
TWO YEARS AGO TODAY

TWO years ago today Atlanta slid, slipped and came to a standstill in the midst of the worst snow, rain, sleet and ice storm in her history. Two years ago yesterday a cold rain blew into Atlanta from a northeast wind which soon turned to an icy, sleet combination that fell upon the street pavements and sidewalks, froze instantly and immediately proceeded to put traffic almost out of the question.

Yesterday threatening clouds and temperatures around and below the freezing point suggested a coming snow storm. About 9 o'clock in the afternoon another cold rain arrived on another northeast wind. This cold rain also turned to snow and sleet with a hell at two and for a time it sure looked like "all day snow" for Atlanta, as "Uncle Remus" used to say.

Incidentally to the young man with a theater date or reception for the evening it looked very much like the $4 kind of weather that necessitates a carriage to and from for "ind lady."

Then it was that the old weather prophets remembered that it was just two years ago to the very day of what will be known for many years to come as the "great ice and sleet storm of Atlanta." Instantly the telephone bell at the weather bureau started and for the rest of the afternoon, this same instrument sounded like a long program of the Swiss Bell Ringers with constant encores. Director Marbury was besieged with questions regarding the likelihood of another sleet storm such as proved so disastrous to Atlanta, Georgia and the south two years ago.

Director Marbury acknowledged that the weather conditions both local and general, according to the weather map, were unsettled, but he did not consider any terrible sleet storm as any way probable. Rather, the indications looked to warmer weather for today and rain. Certainly the records yesterday showed higher temperatures than the day before, although the minimum temperature was 25 degrees and the day closed with the average temperature some 20 degrees lower than normal. But the very fact that they were higher than the previous day, together with the weather conditions shown by the weather map, suggested that the backbone of the present cold spell was broken.

Business Men Relieved.

Among those who called up the weather bureau were many merchants and prominent business men who were greatly relieved to hear that there was little chance of a recurrence of the terrible storm and conditions of two years ago. And this for the best of reasons. No one ever dared to so much as approximate the cost of that awful storm, which lasted from Tuesday, February 7, until including Friday, February 10.

It will be remembered that after a terrible day, during which the storm increased in fury and conditions under foot grew worse and worse, darkness closed in upon the city and immediately there was trouble with the are lamps that lighted the streets in the suburbs. The trolley cars made a hard fight with the storm, schedules were lost completely, and by 8 o'clock the cars were compelled to admit themselves beaten and Atlanta's walkways. It looked for a time as though the hacks would do a land office business, but so slippery did the streets become that even the hacks had a hard time of it and progress at the best was slow and uncertain.

Among the greatest sufferers on that occasion were the telegraph companies. Squad after squad of linemen and helpers were sent in every direction to make repairs. Night and day the work was continued, and there were many instances of real heroism among those who tried in every way to reestablish communication between Atlanta and the outside world. Other linemen were brought south by train loads, but in spite of their efforts Atlanta was isolated so far as the news from outside was concerned for some time.

It was during this storm also that, with the trolley cars at a standstill, the streets became so slippery that horses were unable to keep their footing except at the greatest risk. Then it was that men and push carts took the place of delivery wagons and express wagons and did as much as possible to cope with the situation. In the retail district, business was a standstill. Many employees were unable to get to their places of business and hardly a shopper ventured out. Wholesale houses suffered in the same way.

Railroad schedules were entirely discarded and trains moved as they were able without telegraphic orders. Thousands of fruit and shade trees were killed and some of Atlanta's finest lawns were stripped of their handsomest trees, limbs after limb falling under the weight of the heavy ice. Most of the city was in total darkness and because of falling electric wires, limbs and ice, walking was most dangerous. There were many other dangers and disasters, but there is no need of any inventory, as that terrible period is still fresh in the minds of all those who experienced its privations, both those who had plenty of coal and those who had but little with the chances of getting more reduced to the very lowest terms.

While the cold rain, snow and sleet continued after dark last night, it became more and more apparent as the hours passed that there was little danger of a repetition of any such storm as that of two years ago.

Terrell County Goes Dry by One Hundred and Fifty Majority.

Dawson, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—Terrell county is henceforth dry. Today's election resulted in a majority of 150 against dispensaries. Many ladies assembled near the polls here early this morning, remaining till the last ballot was cast. Their presence and influence contributed much to the result. Prayer services were conducted by the ladies at the Methodist church all day, the ringing every half hour. There is great rejoicing tonight by the friends of prohibition.

Walter Elliott Made a Bad
Job When He Tried Grafting.

After being out of work for several months on account of an injury, Walter J. Elliott, a mechanic, decided that he had to have some money even if he had to graft it, he studied the field of grafting for several weeks and could hit upon no safe, feasible and remunerative plan.

At last he bethought himself of his uncle, G. R. Elliott, or at least of the uncle's bank account.

G. R. Elliott is said to have a fat little account with the Neal bank and Nephew Walter knew about it.

Walter's subsequent acts showed that he knew no more about the science of grafting than he did about work.

He secured a blank check and filled it out for $25 payable to himself. Then he wrote at the bottom "G. R. Elliott" and presented the check at the bank and it was promptly turned down and the police called in.

When Walter was arraigned in the recorder's court yesterday morning an officer of the Neal bank stated that G. R. Elliott did not have to make any mark, as he could write his name and that he never gave other people checks, but always cashed his own paper.

Walter tried to put on a bold front and asserted that his uncle did sign the check.

The recorder held the prisoner in a $500 bond for forgery.

the Mayor of New York.

Albany, N. Y., February 7.—At a hearing this afternoon before the assembly committee on the Prerogative bill increasing the powers of the police commissioner of New York, at which Police Commissioner Bingham was present, Assemblyman Voss, in opposing the measure, asserted that the present mayor of New York in his first term of office once telephoned the then commissioner of police and ordered him to transfer a certain inspector because he was too active in suppressing vice, and thereby was alienating votes for the mayor.

Minority Leader Oliver arose and said that, while he was "persona non grata" at the mayor's office, he thought the statement was a lie.

Mr. Voss then repeated it.

THE USE OF COCAINE
AMONG CITY NEGROES

THE question is often asked about the use of cocaine among negroes in Atlanta. A few years ago the negro men and women, not only in Atlanta, but in several other cities, began such a general use of the drug that laws were enacted to check the sale of it.

Three years ago the victims of the cocaine habit among the negroes in the city could have been counted by the thousands. To use the "dust," as they called it, became a rage and the police frequently heard of "dust" or "coke" societies. It is said that some negroes formed cocaine clubs and kept a fund on hand for the purchase of the drug. At one time at nearly every session of the police court several negro men and women were tried for having been drunk on cocaine. The victims who had been using the drug for any length of time had sunken cheeks and eyes as yellow as a person afflicted with jaundice.

Owing to the persistent efforts of the police and the manner in which the recorder and the state courts punished those who violated the cocaine law the small retail drugists who had found a rich profit in the sale of the drug, either abandoned the sale altogether or sold it in such small quantities that the cocaine victims began to fall off in number and today there are only a few who use the "dust" as compared with a few years ago.

The cocaine used by the negroes is in a powdered form and when sold is mixed with an inoffensive white powder which costs little and helps to fill up the box and make the purchaser believe he is getting much of the "dust" for his money.

The drug is usually bought in 5 and 10-cent lots, but there have been few drugists who would sell a 5-cent box.

The law regulating the sale of cocaine contained many restrictions and it could only be sold on a prescription from a practicing physician. To get around the provision of the law some of the drug stores that wanted to make money selling the drug to negroes had young physicians as clerks and under this arrangement all a person had to do was to want cocaine and to walk into one of these drug stores, lay down 10 cents, get a prescription and then the "dust."

From the bench Judge Calhoun announced that when a case for the illegal sale of cocaine came before him and it was shown that the physician writing the prescription was attached to the drug store he would rule that the prescription was not obtained as contemplated by the law. This ruling had a wonderful effect in decreasing the sale of the drug in Atlanta.

Today there are still a large number of negroes who are addicted to the use of cocaine and they are, of course, frequently before the recorder.

The victims of the drug become vagrants, for it does not take the poison long to make the user a physical wreck. It is far worse than mean whisky or even opium or morphine.

Many of the victims have been cured by long sentences in the workhouse, where they were given good food and treatment, and this with wholesome food and plenty of outdoor exercise saved the wretch from an early and horrible death.

What cocaine is now being sold in the city is done in such a way as to keep the officers of the law from catching the guilty parties, but a close watch is always kept on drug stores that are under suspicion.

SOCIETY

Federation Day at the Club.

NEXT Monday afternoon the program of the regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's Club will be of unusual interest. The program will be given over to the discussion of the Federation of Clubs, from a national, state and local standpoint. Mrs. A. O. Granger, of Carterville, will represent the National Federation, Mrs. M. A. Lipcomb, the State Federation and Mrs. E. G. McCabe, the City Federation. All the visiting presidents called here for the general council Tuesday morning are invited to the meeting; also all the presidents of the federated clubs of the city. The occasion will be of great interest to those a part of the organized effort of the women of Georgia.

Lanier-Bradfield.

THE wedding of Miss Katie Cain Lanier and Mr. Joseph Farrar Bradfield Monday evening, February 11, will be an interesting event, taking place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Benjamin H. Morris, 316 Crew street.

Miss Lanier is the younger daughter of the late Philip Lanier, of West Point, Ga., and Mr. Bradfield is the second son of the late Dr. Lewis Bradfield.

Mrs. Tanner's Bridge Party.

THE bridge party at which Mrs. Henry Tanner entertained yesterday was the last of a series of delightful parties over which she has presided as the gracious hostess. The game of bridge has been played first and then at 5 o'clock the party were invited to the dining room where the decorations were effective and beautiful. With various liberty roses were combined, the table centerpiece a loving cup filled with the flowers. The candlesticks had shades of silver with crystal fringe, and then the eatables. A number of ladies have joined the players and delicious refreshments have been served. The prizes have been French miniatures, and vases in Venetian glass.

The guests of Mrs. Tanner yesterday were: Mrs. W. E. Foster, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Mrs. Louis Gholson, Mrs. Marshall Eckford, Mrs. Lena Swift Hunter, Mrs. Harbottle Thompson, Mrs. Harvey Johnson, Mrs. John Hill, Mrs. Clarence Knowles, Mrs. J. G. Afternoon Reception.

MISS LAWSON BROWN was the guest of honor at the reception given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Rogers Davis, the occasion being distinguished by elegance and artistic taste. Assisting Mrs. Davis in the entertainment of her guests were Mrs. John M. Slaton, Mrs. Edward Van Winkle, Mrs. Paul Goldsmith, Mrs. John Hill, Mrs. Nash Broyles, Mrs. George Boynton, Mrs. J. P. Kennedy and Mrs. Samuel Porter. Serving punch were Mrs. Robert Davis and Mrs. Joseph Raine. The decorations throughout the house were snail and ferns and a luxury of cut flowers.

In the drawing room jonquills were artistically combined with ferns, while in the dining room there were decorations in Roman hyacinths and meteor roses. The table centerpiece was a silhouette lamp, at its base a plateau of hyacinths and roses.

The silver candlesticks along the centerpiece held unshaded tapers. Silver baskets held candied fruits and bonbons, and an elegant luncheon was served.

Mrs. Davis wore an elegant toilet of orchid-colored silk, embroidered in sequins in the orchid shades.

Mrs. Brown wore a white chiffon gown, embroidered in sequins in the pastel tints.

Mrs. Robert Davis was charming in pale blue silk, the corsage embroidered in silver, and trimmed in marquis lace. Mrs. Raine wore pale pink messaline silk and lace.

Mrs. Elkin's Reception.

THE reception given yesterday by Mrs. W. S. Elkin, in compliment to her guest, Mrs. James Hickey, of Montgomery, and Mrs. John M. Cutler, of Macon, was a most enjoyable occasion, that atmosphere of brightness and hospitality reflected the spirit of the popular hostess.

With her guests of honor, Mrs. Hickey and Mrs. Cutler, she received in the drawing room, where the mantels and tables had as additional ornaments tall vases filled with Killarney roses. In the sitting room adjoining, the same flowers were used in graceful arrangement, and in the dining room there were violets and jonquills artistically combined.

The table centerpiece was a "horn of plenty," fashioned in smilax, out of which fell the violets and jonquills in clusters. On the corners of the table were Venetian glass vases filled with jonquills. Silver candlesticks held unshaded yellow tapers, and the bonbons were in yellow.

In the den opposite the sitting room punch was served, the bowl wreathed in grapes and their foliage, and presided over by Misses Alberta, Fannin, Ida Hightower and Lottie Wylie. An orchestra presented a bright musical program in the rear hallway. Among the visiting ladies calling were: Mrs. William Marshall and Mrs. John Rommel.

Mrs. Elkin's gown was of pale gray panne satin, trimmed in crystal fringe, and Irish lace. The corsage had a prismatic front of white lisse embroidered in silver.

Mrs. Cutler wore a pale blue radium silk gown, the corsage elaborately applied in princess lace, threaded in silver.

Mrs. Hickey wore a pale blue messaline satin made empire fashion, and trimmed in Irish lace.

Mrs. William Montgomery wore an elegant toilet in champagne colored cal- lot satin, made according to the graceful lines of the empire princess. The skirt was finished at the bottom with deep tucks, and the corsage in front was drawn surplus fashion to the waist, showing a plastron of white lisse ornate in a tracery of gold threads and applied with champagne colored lace. The sleeve-trimmed in the same lace, and she wore diamond and pearl ornaments.

Mrs. Edward H. Barnes wore a becoming toilet in white Brussels net trimmed in Brussels lace and finished with a deep girdle of white satin.

Mrs. Harry English wore a princess gown of shrimp pink cloth, the skirt and the waist embroidered in a design introducing pink silk and gold threads.

Mrs. Edwin Moritz wore a gray chiffon gown, embroidered in gray, and the corsage combining on its French fashion chiffon and lace.

Mrs. Thomas D. Meador was handsome in an empire gown of gray velvet, the corsage trimmed in Cluny lace.

Mrs. Preston Arkwright wore pale pink messaline satin, the corsage finished with inserted plaques of pink lisse and lace.

Mrs. Hugh McKee wore black chiffon cloth, the corsage of white lace trimmed in bands of black and finished with an effective touch of blue.

Mrs. Ida Montgomery wore pale pink messaline satin and lace.

Miss Alberta Rankin wore a rose colored cloth gown, the gumples and sleeves of cream colored lace.

Miss Lottie Wylie wore white chiffon cloth and white lace, with girdle of white satin.

A number of elegant toilets were admired on the ladies calling. Mrs. Barbour Thompson wore a dahlia colored cloth gown embroidered, the corsage having combined in its fashion gray chiffon and lace. Her hat of velvet was trimmed in dahlia and plumes shading in those colors.

Mrs. W. J. Blacklock wore an elegant toilet in pale blue radium silk, the skirt and corsage applied in point lace. Her hat of rose colored velvet was trimmed in plumes the same colors.

Mrs. W. A. Spier wore a calling gown of dark garnet cloth, with deep-pointed yoke and sleeves of cream colored lace, and applied trimming introducing gold threads. Her hat of garnet velvet was trimmed in plumes.

To Miss Johnson.

MRS. GILBERT FRASER'S bridge party yesterday afternoon was one of the prettiest affairs in a gay week, her guest of honor, Miss Sara Johnson, a charming bride-elect of next week.

The house had an artistic decoration in smilax and palms which were used with elaboration, and many crystal candlesticks burning unshaded candles made a quaint effect in all the card rooms.

Miss Florence Bradley and Miss Margaret Fraser served punch, the punch table being attractively placed in the music room, and after the game delicious refreshments were served.

The first prize, a pair of silk stockings, was won by Miss Maud Scruggs, the consolation, a beaded purse, by Mrs. A. Y. Johnson, and Miss Johnson was presented a traveling toilet case.

Mrs. Fraser's becoming gown was of white, the lace waist being strapped with the same cloth that made the skirt.

Miss Johnson wore brown cloth and Bruges lace and a velvet hat trimmed with plumes.

To Miss McCune.

MRS. VIRGIL SHEPARD'S card party yesterday afternoon in compliment to her guest, Miss Helen McCune, of Pittsburgh, was a beautiful affair in violet and yellow. There were four tables of six-hand English, and in the card rooms a profusion of jonquills and violets in vases and bowls made a bright, fragrant decoration.

In the dining room, where a delicious buffet luncheon was served, the table had for its centerpiece a basket of jonquills and violets, the violets forming a border around the yellow blooms and the basket tied with yellow and purple tulle which was loosely drawn from the chandelier. The brass candlesticks had purple candles, and all the color details of the table decoration and the menu were the two prevailing shades.

The score-cards were handpainted in jonquills and violets and the prizes were a gown of gray crepe de chine and candlestick. They were won by Miss Moffet and Miss Georgia Watts. Miss McCune was presented a silver spoon.

Mrs. Shepard wore a handsome gown of gray crepe de chine and Irish lace and a corsage bouquet of Parma violets.

Miss McCune was gowned in white embroidered net with a touch of pink in the trimming.

Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Shepard's mother, wore black and white silk.

To Miss Neary.

MRS. ROBERT OTIS entertained informally at bridge yesterday afternoon and the affair was a delightful one in compliment to Miss Neary, of Wilmington, Del., the guest of Miss O'Brien.

The first prize, a water color picture, was won by Mrs. E. C. Thrash; the consolation, silk stockings, by Miss Rose Lovette, and Miss Neary was presented a belt.

Delicious refreshments were served after the game.

The pretty young hostess wore a white voile gown, and Miss Neary was charming in gray, her cloth tailor gown worn with a velvet hat.

Miss Blount's Tea.

IT was a bright scene when, at Miss Blount's tea yesterday, there were assembled a hundred young people to meet the members of the Vanderbilt university glee club.

In compliment to them the house was decorated throughout with a luxury of jonquills, tied with streamers of yellow ribbon, and the table from which the dainty refreshments were served was decorated in jonquills and yellow shaded candlesticks.

Miss Blount was beautifully gowned in yellow chiffon cloth applied in lace, and her guest, Miss Stubblefield, wore pale blue cloth and Irish lace.

Assisting Miss Blount in the entertainment of her guests were Misses Louise Baird, Marion Nutting, Lullia Jeter, Ethel Reely, Susie May Pope, Leonora Ansley, Helen Muse, Lella Richard and Louise Ayers, of Macon, and Mrs. Harold Moore.

Mrs. Gray's Party.

AT the bridge party given yesterday morning by Mrs. W. W. Gray in compliment to Mrs. Marshall, the top score was made by Mrs. Lowry Arnold, the prize, a beautiful book; the consolation prize, a set of Japanese dinner cards, was won by Mrs. Otley, and the guest's prize, a picture, was given Mrs. Marshall.

The house was artistically decorated with narcissi and jonquills, and a substantial and delicious luncheon was served after the game.

Mrs. Gray's becoming toilet was in white silk voile lace and an embroidery of silver, Mrs. Smith wore nymphet blue voile and lace, and Mrs. Marshall was beautifully gowned in gray.

CONSTITUTION PATTERNS PRICE ONLY TEN CENTS

A BOX PLEATED FROCK WITH REMOVABLE SHIELD.

A small frock which would serve equally well for the boy or girl has box pleats combined with a shield which is removable—two popular features in children's dresses. The box pleats lend an appearance of height, as well as supply fullness to the blouse and extra width to the hem. The scheme is further carried out in the sleeve, where two box pleats hold the fullness at the cuff. A contrasting material may be introduced in shield and belt or the latter may be of leather. Serge, pongee, plume or linen may be used for the dress. The medium size calls for 2 1/8 yards of 44-inch material. 4145—eight sizes, 2 to 9 years. The price of this pattern is 10c.

Pattern Dept. The Constitution.
Enclosed please find 10 cents, for which send the above mentioned pattern, as per directions given below:

Industrial Association Committee Take Action on Bills in Congress.

N. Y. COTTON EXCHANGE
DEPRESSES PRICE OF STAPLE

Resolutions Introduced by J. L.
Hand, of Pelham, Declare Bill of Senator From Indiana on Child Labor Illegal and Unnecessary.

The officers and the executive and legislative committees of the Georgia Industrial Association held a meeting yesterday morning in the office of King, Spalding & Little and transacted important business and also agreed that the next annual convention should be held at Warm Springs, Ga., in the spring, the date to be fixed by the president.

Fuller E. Callaway, of LaGrange, offered a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, indorsing and approving the fight which Hon. L. F.
Livingston, member of congress from Georgia, is waging against the New York cotton exchange, and the committee also adopted a preamble and resolution offered by Judson L. Hand, of Pelham, opposing the passage by congress of the Beveridge child labor law now pending in the United States senate. Copies of these resolutions have been forwarded to the Georgia senators and representatives in congress, urging them to support the Livingston resolution and to oppose the passage of the Beveridge bill.

The following officers of the association and members of the executive and legislative committees were present at the meeting: Dr. Jeff Davis, of Toccoa, president; Charles D. Tule-ter, of Atlanta, secretary; James P.
Vandery, of Augusta, chairman of the executive committee; Fuller E. Calla-way, of LaGrange; Judson L. Hand, of Pelham; W. J. Kincaid, of Griffin; B.
Walker, of Monroe; Jack J. Spalding, of Atlanta; S. C. Dunlap, of Gainesville, chairman of the legislative committee, and others.

The resolution in regard to the New York cotton exchange was as follows:

Colonel Livingston Indorsed.
"Resolved by Georgia Industrial Association that the action of Honorable L. F.
Livingston, member of congress from Georgia, seeking to protect the farmers, mill interests, and other producers of handicrafts of cotton from the injustice and injury done them by the contract and method of doing business of the New York cotton exchange, be and the same is indorsed and approved.

"Resolved further, That as now conducted the quotations prices and contracts used in conducting business in the New York cotton exchange are misleading and injurious to the mill interests and that they are unable to cover the undertakings for future delivery of cotton; and that the same are injurious and harmful to the farmers in that they directly depress and injure the selling price of spot cotton, and that the same should not be permitted to continue to be conducted by any lawful means.

"Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to each of our senators and representatives in congress, and that they be, and they are hereby requested and urged to support
the resolution of the said Honorable L.
F. Livingston seeking an investigation and the correction of said evils."

Against Beveridge Bill.
The preamble and resolution of Judson
L. Hand, unanimously adopted protests against the passage by congress of the bill of Senator Beveridge, now pending in the senate, prohibiting the manufacture of goods by child labor, and that the Georgia statute became effective to pronounce upon its efficiency, and that the condition of children of given ages who may be deprived by law of the right to work may be and are totally different in one state from what they are in another.

The resolution recites that the contemplated legislation is unnecessary, harmful and beyond the power of congress, and our senators and representatives in congress are requested to oppose the passage of the bill.

taking the first and third falls. Gotch won the first fall in 31 minutes, Burns took the second in six minutes, and the champion the third in 21 minutes.

$50,000 POLICY CAUSES APPEAL

Appeal Taken From Judge

Speer's Decision in Big

Case.

Savannah, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
An appeal will be taken shortly by the attorneys for Max Alexander from the decision of Judge Speer, of the federal district court, in the case of the $50,000 life insurance policy held by the late John R. Young in the Mutual of New York up to two years before his death,
when it was transferred to Alexander.
Judge Speer held that Alexander had no insurable interest in the life of Young,
and that, therefore, he did not own the policy. The court ordered that Alexander be repaid the $40,000, with interest, that he had paid for the policy.

As there is a matter of $40,000 involved, which the court ordered, should revert to the Young estate, it is natural that the case should not be allowed to rest. Before the court of appeals Alexander's attorneys will rely upon the Georgia law, which holds that an insurance policy is transferable. The attorneys believe the assignment to Alexander will hold under the highest court's interpretation.

MARDI GRAS ON AT NEW ORLEANS

The Streets Were Densely

Packed During the Parade.

New Orleans, La., February 7.—The Mardi Gras carnival week began tonight with the allegorical street parade of Monsieur, God of Mirth.

The seventeen floats composing the parade moved through densely packed streets and were lighted by thousands of gas torches with polished reflectors. The floats represented the places visited by Monsieur in quest of the fountain of youth and included among them were the "center of the earth" and a scene on the sun and the moon.

The Knights of Monsieus, accompanying the parade, were all masked. After the parade there were tableaux, followed by the annual ball at the French opera house, which was participated in by the masked knights and by New Orleans society and business leaders.

The revenue cutter Windward, the third United States vessel to arrive here for the carnival, was reported at Port Eads tonight. The other vessels are the cruiser Columbia and the yacht Mayflower. The latter will not participate in the festivities, but is here to help in the celebration of the states. It is claimed that the several states in which the cotton mills are situated regulate by their laws the question of child labor, and that the statement that the state laws have been ineffective is untrue, and that sufficient time has not elapsed since the Georgia statute became effective to pronounce upon its efficiency, and that the condition of children of given ages who may be deprived by law of the right to work may be and are totally different in one state from what they are in another.

NEGRO KILLED AT COLUMBUS.

Young White Man Struck Him With a Scantling—Negro Abusive.

Columbus, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
Moss Jackson, a negro, is dead, the result of a blow dealt him with a scantling yesterday by Lige Bennett, a young man.
Bennett is employed at Golden's foundry, where Jackson was a laborer. The two had a quarrel, and it is claimed that the negro became abusive, whereupon Bennett struck him with a piece of scantling lying near. Bennett has not yet surrendered to the police. He is said to be in Alabama.

QUOTED 20 TO 1, FOREIGNER WON

Surprise in the Fifth Event

at New Orleans.

The Englishman Won the Feature

Event by a Narrow Margin

From Pasadena—Favorites Fared Fairly

ARE PLEASED WITH NEW RULE

Savannah Seems to Like

Sunday Closing of the Barrooms.

Savannah, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
Much interest has been aroused in Savannah over the question of the Sunday closing of the barrooms. Thus far, under the new administration, they have been closed regularly on Sundays, and there is no reason to believe that they will not continue to do so. It is a great experience, however, but the people seem to like it. In fact, there has been quite a clamor for the closing of the social club buffets on Sundays, and this, too, may follow.

The Oglethorpe Club, the leading organization of the older business men,
has not yet determined upon its course, though it is said that the majority of the club opposes Sunday closing. It was for this reason that President T.
Mayhew Cunningham, who was the leader of the new political faction that carried the recent elections upon Sunday closing and other reform declarations, a few days ago, submitted his resignation.

The Georgia Hussars' Club announces that its buffet will hereafter be closed on Sundays. Other organizations have not announced their purposes.

Seniors Arrange for Banquet.

Macon, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
The members of the senior class of Mercer university arranged for their regular senior class banquet today. The banquet will be held at the Lanier hotel on Friday, February 15, and the occasion will be a happy one for the seniors. H. M. Jones is making all arrangements for the class, and he will in-nowise leave anything undone that would add to the success of the evening.
The banquet board will be well laden and consist of several courses.
Speech making will be a part of the program, and the eloquence and oratory of the seniors will bring them back into reminiscence of the by-gone days.
The present senior class of Mercer numbers about thirty, and there are many bright men. The class of '07 is above the average, it is conceded, and consists of men that are loyal supporters of the institution at all times.

Pension Money Soon to Come.

Macon, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
One week from today General C. M.
rivalry of Bibb county, will be distributed among the veterans and widows
entitled to pensions a fund of little over $22,000. This is the annual fund coming to the veterans of this county. All details of arrangements have been made for the payment of this amount and many aged persons will be made glad by the arrival of the cash. Those who were recently added to the pension rolls of the state will not receive their annual allotment until after the summer session
of the legislature.

E. H. Harriman Has Recovered.

New York, February 7.—E. H. Harriman, who has been confined to his house for nearly a month as a result of a surgical operation, was at his office today for the first time since his illness.

ATHENS TO HAVE FINE HOTEL.

To Cost Not Less Than $100,000.

Athens, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
The movement for a new hotel in this city to cost not less than $100,000 is taking shape rapidly now. The formation of a company for the building of the hotel is under way, and a site for the new building will be selected soon.
It is likely that the Washington street school lot will be purchased from the city if the city will sell. It is poorly located for a school building, and the location is just what is needed for a hotel. It is expected to complete the hotel in a year at least. It will be one of the handsomest in the state.

Pension Money Soon to Come.

Macon, Ga., February 7.—(Special).—
One week from today General C. M.
rivalry of Bibb county, will be distributed among the veterans and widows
entitled to pensions a fund of little over $22,000. This is the annual fund coming to the veterans of this county. All details
of arrangements have been made for the payment of this amount and many aged
persons will be made glad by the arrival of the cash. Those who were recently added to the pension rolls of the
state will not receive their annual allotment until after the summer session
of the legislature.

GRAND JURY FREE OF TRUST TAIN

Is Demand of Ackerman, and Judge Speer Agrees.

INVESTIGATION IS BEGUN

Of the Alleged Turpentine Trust at Savannah—Two Grand Jurors Are Excused—Speculation as to Start of Investigation.

Savannah, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—Assistant District Attorney Ackerman announced upon the convening of the federal district court today that it was his purpose to proceed against a certain alleged turpentine trust and that it was his desire that an absolutely fair and impartial grand jury be secured. He thereupon asked Judge Speer to ask the grand jurors if any of them were connected with the turpentine trust or any other monopoly.

Judge Speer asked the question. Juror W. T. Hopkins answered that the fertilizer concern with which he is connected is already under indictment as operating a trust. He was excused.

George F. Tennille, with the Southern Cotton Oil Company, was challenged. He said he did not know anything if his concern was a trust or monopoly nor did he know anything about it having a connection with the Standard Oil Company. Nevertheless, he was excused.

Judge Speer delivered his charge, after which the grand jury retired. A number of naval stores men were examined.

Attorney Alexander Ackerman presented evidence designed to secure indictments under the Sherman anti-trust law of the alleged "Turpentine trust."

There was presented a mass of documentary evidence, much of which had been secured by the government by secret service methods when it had been shipped by the S. P. Shutter Company from this city to Massachusetts.

There has been much speculation as to what started the government investigation of the alleged trust, resulting in the action taken in the federal court today. It is generally believed that it was the consumers, the paint and varnish men and the soap men, who launched the movement. It is the belief among the naval stores trade in Savannah that experts took the field, at the instance of the organization of paint and varnish men and soap men, and secured evidence upon which they based a complaint before the attorney general of the United States. Then it was that the matter was placed in the hands of the district attorney for the southern district of Georgia. Assistant District Attorney Ackerman has been at work on it for months, and during this time he has made several trips to Washington, New York and other places, working up his case.

It is said that the prevailing high price of rosin and turpentine during the last three or four years has been responsible for the prosecution. For years before the rise came the naval stores producers, the men who get out into the woods with their teams and hands and make the product, had been receiving so little for rosin and turpentine that it was all they could do, more than many of them could do, to keep their heads above water. Then, for some reason, came the rapid advance in price. The consumers refused to believe it was because labor, mules, supplies, lands and other essentials to production were higher. They preferred to consider that it was because of a illegal combination on the part of the exporters. Hence the investigation, and hence the prosecution.

Kept Marriage a Secret.
Albany, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—After having kept their marriage a secret for nearly a month, Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Barnes and Mrs. M. J. Barnes, friends in Albany yesterday, Mr. Barnes and Miss Dorothy Gilbert, daughter of Mrs. Linn Gilbert, were married at the residence of Rev. W. L. Richards on January 1. Although the quiet ceremony was witnessed by several near relatives of the contracting parties, the fact was so well guarded that the announcement was a complete surprise yesterday.

Dunlap Elected Mayor.
Gadsden, Ala., February 7.—(Special.)—In the second primary of the selection of a candidate for mayor today, J. D. Dunlap won by a majority of 46 votes. The vote polled was as large, not larger, than that of the first primary. Mr. George S. Vann won for alderman in the second ward by a large majority. The nominations for city officers are equivalent to an election.

Diamonds Going Up.
New York, February 7.—A general advance of 5 per cent in the price of diamonds was announced yesterday in cable messages received by importers who buy the DeBeers stones in the rough from the London selling syndicate. Diamonds are now selling at the rate of 10 per cent above the price which prevailed in 1899.

CHRONIC ULCERS
EXTERNAL EVIDENCE OF INTERNAL POISON

Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal, it is a sure sign of a diseased condition of the blood. The sore itself is simply an outside evidence of some internal poison, and the only way to cure it is to remove the deep underlying cause. Sores and Ulcers originate usually from a retention in the system of bodily waste matters and impurities. These should pass off through the natural avenues of waste, but because of a sluggish condition of the different members they are retained in the system to be taken up by the blood. This vital fluid soon becomes unhealthy or diseased, and the skin gives way in some weak place and a Sore or Ulcer is formed. The constant drainage of impurities through a sore causes it to fester, grow red and inflamed and eat deeper into the surrounding flesh, and often there is severe pain and some discharge. S. S. S. is the remedy for Sores and Ulcers. It is nature's blood purifier, made entirely of vegetable matter, known to be specific for all blood diseases and disorders. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, and removes the poison and impure matter, so that the sore is no longer fed with impurities, but is nourished and healed with a stream of healthy, rich blood. Then the place begins to heal, new flesh is formed, the inflammation subsides, and when S. S. S. has thoroughly cleansed the circulation the place heals permanently. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired will be sent free to all who write.

JUDGE HAMMOND MADE PRESIDENT OF STATE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Flashlight by Will P. Nelson.
DELEGATES TO STATE CONVENTION OF ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

THE state convention of the Anti-Saloon League of Georgia has passed into history, and the members have recorded as part of their work that they will endeavor to close the saloons of Georgia as soon as it is possible.

The resolutions adopted indicate that the league will make a strenuous fight before the coming session of the Georgia legislature.

When as a whole, the convention was satisfactory to most of the league workers, and the prospects are considered by them to be good. The following officers of the league were elected for the year 1907:

ALL CLUBS AND MASONS BARRED BY MRS. NATION

MRS. CARRIE NATION expressed her mind in a fluent fashion yesterday afternoon regarding clubs in general and the Capital City Club in particular. She took a running start, and she landed with a bang. She told the card clubs, left the Capital City Club gasping for breath and finally felled with a war whoop when she arrived at Freemasonry.

According to her statement the other clubs and fraternal societies are innocent as new born babes by comparison with the Masons, to whom she attributes that most heinous of all crimes on the part of a man—secrecy to his wife.

Mrs. Nation had been single-footing along at a smooth gait until she attempted to take a fall out of the Masons. She found she had hit off a chunk too large for even her fiery style of invective, and she promptly blew up. In her efforts to express herself she made a noise like a clock that pauses before striking. Her rare collection of adjectives got mixed up and they tumbled out without any distinct relation to one another.

"You can never be joined in the bonds of matrimony as God intended you should if you marry a Mason, because" (and here Mrs. Nation eyes glared like the headlights of an engine) "because he has to take an oath that he will not tell you anything about the order."

It was at this point that Mrs. Nation blew up like jaded jay cards for the long, long course. The last hurdle was too great a handicap.

The audience was mostly composed of married women and young girls. The former nodded approvingly; the latter appeared courageous enough to try the experiment.

"And these dances," continued Mrs. Nation apropos of nothing after she had blown a while, "these dances! What are they? They are nothing but hugging schools; that's what they are."

There were glances in the audience which were interesting. Some showed quite plainly a willingness for an experimental course in the school, while on the faces of others (these were the old maid) there was confusion confounded.

About this time Mrs. Nation turned loose a few references which may be found in the Bible, but which are not used in choice society. One or two ladies thought this sounded like 23 and quietly beat it to the door. The majority stayed, however. If Carrie noticed the departures she said nothing about it.

Prior to her coming on the stage yesterday afternoon the orchestra gave the signal by playing with a great deal of emotion, "Good Morning, Carrie! How Do You Feel This Morning?"

This kind of an impromptu question, but she seemed to be feeling pretty fine.

During her talk Wednesday night Mrs. Nation said she thought the man who advertised whiskey was as bad as the man who sold it. Her attention was called to the fact that the program of the Eldorado contained four whiskey ads, and she immediately insisted they be taken out while she was lecturing. This was done.

Montgomery, Ala., February 7.—(Special.)—The most exciting feature of the legislative session yesterday was the contest in the house over the local option bill, on which a vote was not reached. This bill has attracted more attention than any other liquor measure that has been before the legislature for several years, and has brought to the city a larger number of people working on both sides of the question than any other issue during the present session.

The matter came up on two reports from the committee on temperance, one a majority and the other a minority. The former advised the passage of the bill as originally drawn, which provides for local option with the county as the unit, while the latter is different only in that it advises the precinct or city as the unit. In other words, according to the majority report the citizens of the county may vote liquor entirely out, while the incorporated towns and cities might desire to keep it.

This kind of a provision would make it possible, for instance, for Montgomery county to eliminate whiskey from Montgomery city, or the voters of Jefferson county might put the traffic entirely out of Birmingham and all the other cities. Because of this possibility in them which might produce great changes in the business of all the Alabama centers, there was the greatest interest in the minority report. This report was offered by Mr. Goodwyn, of Montgomery, who argued that there had been no demand for the county unit, and the adoption of it would be disastrous to the business interests of the cities, as well as depriving the cities of the right to do as they please about it. Each community ought to be allowed to settle this question for themselves according to the argument presented by Mr. Goodwyn.

Made Hot Speech.

Mr. King, of Jefferson, made a right hot prohibition speech. He said that the members of this legislature were going on record on the whiskey question, and in his opinion it is the most important issue now before the body. He believed that Mr. Goodwyn's speech would be very gratifying to the saloon men of Birmingham and play right into their hands. It was his opinion that the liquor business is disastrous and hurtful in every way and had to be placed under the most rigid and careful control. The party had demanded local option, and Mr. King believed that the county unit was in line of the spirit of the platform. Mr. Fuller, of Bibb, also made an earnest argument in favor of the measure.

The house provided for the question of mileage and revised the lists with regard to travel by all the members. A bill was passed to prohibit the sale of adulterated cotton seed meal as fertilizer. Because of additional clerical errors the general appropriations bill was recalled from the governor for the third time.

Remarks Are Withdrawn.

Montgomery, Ala., February 7.—(Special.)—When the senate opened yesterday Mr. Hamberger withdrew all remarks that he made yesterday, which might not have been taken pleasantly by other members of the body. He disclaimed any intention of reflecting in any way upon the patriotism and good judgment of the gentleman from Marshall or any others. He said that he was especially anxious that Mr. Lusk, who had been the subject of some semi-ocular resolutions of the Middle man, should understand that he was cordially and especially invited to the Mardi Gras festivities, and assured of a warm welcome and a good time. By unanimous consent he was allowed to fight himself with the body, and everything moves on smoothly, even between these two representatives of the antipodes of the state.

The senate president signed the bill for a dispensary bill, also game and fish bill, and the measure providing for the collection of claims from common carriers.

Mr. Leitch offered a resolution providing for a commission to sit during recess and investigate the allegation that there is a fertilizer trust in the state which is robbing the people. This commission would have authority to go fully into the subject, summon witnesses and make an exhaustive report later on.

Rome, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—The case of Elmer Mahan, the 13-year-old boy charged with the murder of William Kennedy, was concluded this morning in the superior court before Judge M. Wright at 10:30 o'clock. Solicitor General Ennis made the closing argument for the state. Judge Wright charged the jury and they retired at 10:56 o'clock to make out the verdict. In just an hour and three minutes they returned the verdict of not guilty, giving young Mahan his liberty.

BAILEY COMMITTEE ATTACKED.

Coke, Who Is Prosecuting Senator, Complains of Unfairness.

Austin, Tex., February 7.—Awaiting the arrival of additional witnesses, the legislative committee which is investigating charges preferred against United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey today adjourned until Saturday. Today's testimony was devoid of special importance.

Representative Coke, who preferred the charges against Senator Bailey, today offered objection to the treatment he has received at the hands of the committee. He was assured by Chairman O'Neill, however, that he was being treated with all fairness, but that if criticisms of the committee continued, all attorneys must be debarred from attending the sessions.

COLUMBUS IS TO RAISE $2,000

Meeting Held to Start Movement to Fight Tuberculosis. For Representation in the Georgia Immigration Association.

Columbus, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—Columbus has set about in earnest to raise $2,000 for the city's adequate representation in the movement inaugurated by the Georgia Immigration Association to increase the white population of the state. The local association of textile manufacturers has given $1,000 to the fund, the other manufacturers here will be asked to give $500, and city council has been requested to appropriate $500, and will probably do so.

Vice President G. Gunby Jordan and Director F. B. Gordon, of the Georgia Immigration Association, appeared before city council last night and made a strong plea for an appropriation for the work. In his remarks Mr. Jordan said that Georgia was being outstripped by other southern states in the matter of securing desirable immigrants. Of the one and one-quarter million immigrants who came to America last year, Georgia secured only 752. Virginia secured 9,000, and in one Texas port alone, Galveston, in the month of November last, 750 foreigners entered. South Carolina is already being benefited by the influx of foreigners of desirable class. Mr. Jordan illustrated this with an incident by which he chance to see a personal family. A Columbus man recently went to a town in South Carolina to assist in the sale of some farm property in which he was interested. The thing owners of a most stiff price for it, and to his surprise, it brought that, with 22 per cent added, so lively was the bidding. The Columbus man investigated and found that a good many of the foreigners who have recently come to South Carolina have settled in that town, there already being a German colony there, and that with the increase in population, land values went up.

STIRRED OVER LOCAL OPTION

Alabama House Discussed the Bill—Two Reports Submitted.

Montgomery, Ala., February 7.—(Special.)—The most exciting feature of the legislative session yesterday was the contest in the house over the local option bill, on which a vote was not reached. This bill has attracted more attention than any other liquor measure that has been before the legislature for several years, and has brought to the city a larger number of people working on both sides of the question than any other issue during the present session.

The matter came up on two reports from the committee on temperance, one a majority and the other a minority. The former advised the passage of the bill as originally drawn, which provides for local option with the county as the unit, while the latter is different only in that it advises the precinct or city as the unit. In other words, according to the majority report the citizens of the county may vote liquor entirely out, while the incorporated towns and cities might desire to keep it.

This kind of a provision would make it possible, for instance, for Montgomery county to eliminate whiskey from Montgomery city, or the voters of Jefferson county might put the traffic entirely out of Birmingham and all the other cities. Because of this possibility in them which might produce great changes in the business of all the Alabama centers, there was the greatest interest in the minority report. This report was offered by Mr. Goodwyn, of Montgomery, who argued that there had been no demand for the county unit, and the adoption of it would be disastrous to the business interests of the cities, as well as depriving the cities of the right to do as they please about it. Each community ought to be allowed to settle this question for themselves according to the argument presented by Mr. Goodwyn.

Made Hot Speech.

Mr. King, of Jefferson, made a right hot prohibition speech. He said that the members of this legislature were going on record on the whiskey question, and in his opinion it is the most important issue now before the body. He believed that Mr. Goodwyn's speech would be very gratifying to the saloon men of Birmingham and play right into their hands. It was his opinion that the liquor business is disastrous and hurtful in every way and had to be placed under the most rigid and careful control. The party had demanded local option, and Mr. King believed that the county unit was in line of the spirit of the platform. Mr. Fuller, of Bibb, also made an earnest argument in favor of the measure.

The house provided for the question of mileage and revised the lists with regard to travel by all the members. A bill was passed to prohibit the sale of adulterated cotton seed meal as fertilizer. Because of additional clerical errors the general appropriations bill was recalled from the governor for the third time.

Remarks Are Withdrawn.

Montgomery, Ala., February 7.—(Special.)—When the senate opened yesterday Mr. Hamberger withdrew all remarks that he made yesterday, which might not have been taken pleasantly by other members of the body. He disclaimed any intention of reflecting in any way upon the patriotism and good judgment of the gentleman from Marshall or any others. He said that he was especially anxious that Mr. Lusk, who had been the subject of some semi-ocular resolutions of the Middle man, should understand that he was cordially and especially invited to the Mardi Gras festivities, and assured of a warm welcome and a good time. By unanimous consent he was allowed to fight himself with the body, and everything moves on smoothly, even between these two representatives of the antipodes of the state.

The senate president signed the bill for a dispensary bill, also game and fish bill, and the measure providing for the collection of claims from common carriers.

Mr. Leitch offered a resolution providing for a commission to sit during recess and investigate the allegation that there is a fertilizer trust in the state which is robbing the people. This commission would have authority to go fully into the subject, summon witnesses and make an exhaustive report later on.

STAPLE COTTON MARKET

Liverpool Cables Send Staple Up 7 to 11 Points.

Toward the Close of the Session Professional Buyers Became More Aggressive on Short Side, and Last Prices Were Lowest of the Session.

New York, February 7.—The cotton market had another sharp bulge early in the day, but most of the advance was lost later in the session with the close barely steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 6 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 150,000. The opening was firm at an advance of 7 1/2 points higher in response to Liverpool cables, Liverpool being 7 1/2 points higher on near months at the hour of the local opening, when it came to a close 1 1/2 points higher on the New York close of the previous day, while the English spot market was 10 points higher on sales of 12,000 bales. Some stop loss orders were uncovered by the initial advance, which carried March to 9.47 and May to 9.62, or about 1/2 point higher, but at this level realizing by receipts and the estimates for tomorrow's receipts a little heavier, prices sagged off during the middle session. Toward the close local professionals became a little more aggressive on the short side and last prices were at the lowest point of the session. Port receipts for the day were light compared with recent figures, and about 7,000 bales of foreign exports. Some wires reported higher grades offering a little more freely, but stated that holders continued firm in their views and that no material officially reported were unchanged to the higher. Receipts at the ports today 35,670 bales, against 32,253 last week and 17,938 bales last year. For the week 250,000 bales, against 304,880 last week and 130,314 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 10,461 bales, against 5,655 last year, and at Houston 6,804 bales, against 4,150 last year. Cotton, spot, closed steady 5 points higher; middling uplands 11.05; middling gulf 11.30, no sales.

New Orleans Cotton Market. New Orleans, February 7.—Cotton, spot closed firm at 1-1/2 higher, middling 10.46. Sales on the spot were 3,725 bales and 1,825 to arrive. Futures opened steady 9/16 points higher, principally on the good English spot demand. Trading was rather dull except for some covering by shorts, which carried prices down a few points. The close was steady 7 to 10 points higher than yesterday.

Dry Goods Market. New York, February 7.—The dry goods market holds strong and active in the primary jobbing divisions. Much complaint is heard about delays in transportation.

Liverpool Cotton Market. Liverpool, February 7.—12.30 p. m.—Cotton, spot, good business done with prices firm; middling uplands 6.11. Sales estimated 12,000. American 11,600; speculation and export 1,000; receipts 11,000. American 10,700. Futures opened steady.

Estimated Receipts Today. Houston, 11,000 to 13,000 y. 4,285; New Orleans, 7,000 to 8,500 y. 5,233; Galveston, 18,000 to 21,000 y. 6,726.

Hubbard Bros. & Co. (Correspondents Hayward, Vick & Clark.) Chicago, February 7.—WHEAT—A battle royal was waged today in wheat with the bulls the victors at the close. Every possible effort was made by the professional element here and elsewhere to break the market, but the steady absorption by the constantly broadening trade offset every advance. The market situation is developing a strength not seen for years. Russia and the continent (for whom Russia is the principal market) were looking for a reaction in Liverpool tomorrow of from 2 to 3 points. There is little change in the factors bearing upon the market, but the professional look for any permanent decline is noticeable.

When you drink

whiskey you're entitled to the best. Especially when you pay the price. But you seldom get it as long as you're willing to take the unbranded sort that is handed out in a plain bottle. A whiskey that's good, is good enough to have a name, so that it may be called for again, and again. The plain bottle sort is profitable to the dealer, but where do you come in? You can change the order of things, and always get a thoroughly good whiskey, if you call for MARK ROGERS, and be sure that you get it. It costs the dealer more, because it's high-grade and has real merit, and that's the kind you pay for. It's really delicious, and you'll linger over the last drop.

Begin now, ask for it, and insist upon it. At all good places.

TRENDS UPWARD IN STOCK MARKET

More Animated and Comprehensive Use Shown at Close.

Developments in Washington, Oregon, May Relieve the Hostility Existing Between the Corporations and the Administration.

New York, February 7.—A hesitating and irregular advance broadened out in the final hour of today's stock market into a more animated and comprehensive rise than has occurred at any time since the decline of the market in January of 1906. The inspiration for the moment is largely on rumors of Washington, Oregon, of a new development there that will relieve the corporation world from the sense of hostility on the part of the administration of the government. Up to that time there were long periods of lethargy in the trading, and the same lack of follow-up to the movement that has left the market without definite tendencies for several days. There was an absence of the weakness in individual stocks, which has been an unsettling influence in recent markets. A temporary recovery in the condition of affairs, the first recovery was the only exception of importance. There was no clear reflection in the day's market of any important developments in the condition of affairs. Sentiment was favorably affected by the advices from the winter wheat regions, of a quiet snow covered to insure the safety of that crop.

The wheat market was affected at the same time by the promises of extra foreign requirements for wheat from Russia and Argentine shortages. The southwestern railroads were most immediately affected by this outlook. A reduction of an intended increase in the dividends on Southern Pacific and Atchafalaya, which have been often heard, were also associated with the effect, especially in the case of Atchafalaya. Southern Pacific was sluggish and did not respond even to the prospect of a dividend increase. A return to his office, after a period of illness of the head of this system. Erie was a conspicuous figure of the strength. Prospects for the proposed increase in freight rates, which are being canvassed extensively in the railroad world, gave a subject for discussion. This served to counteract to some extent the showing of decreases in net earnings of railroads by reason of increased operating cost. The intention of the railroads to retrench their plans for any future projects of improvement is now generally accepted as a fixed determination. A reduction of the pressure for new capital is expected to result. But also a subsidence of part of the demand for material for labor is to be accepted as an inevitable consequence. The feature of the day in the money market was the sale of government bonds, and the supplies coming into the market from many sources and causing a material recession in rates. Foreign exchange was also affected, although the strong position reported by the banks of England and France showed the growing strength of the foreign funds in spite of the retention of the 5 per cent discount rate by the Bank of England. While the late rise in stocks broadened out, the market was still largely specialized in the early favorites. The closing was strong at near the best. Bonds were firm. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

New York, February 7.—Money on call 2 1/2%; 2 1/2% for 14 days; 2 1/2% for 30 days; 2 1/2% for 60 days; 2 1/2% for 90 days; 2 1/2% for 180 days; 2 1/2% for 360 days. Prime mercantile paper 3 1/2% to 4 1/2%.

Sterling exchange firm with actual business in London, at 48 1/2 to 49 1/2. 60-day bills, posted rates 48 1/2 to 49 1/2. Commercial bills 48 1/2 to 49 1/2. Mexican dollars 52 1/2. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds firm.
